

1. (currently amended) A banner management method encoded on a computer-readable medium operating on a browser user interface on terminals in a network of terminals, wherein the browser user interface is persistent, being substantially visible during browsing, the method comprising the steps of: (1) initialising a command file with inputs from a system administrator of the network, including providing banner window customization means an interface by which information displayed in a banner window on each browser interface is customizable by the system administrator ~~can customize banners displayed on each browser interface~~; and (2) executing the command file, thus displaying banners as ordered by the command file.
2. (new) The banner management method of claim 1, wherein the information is a banner.
3. (new) A computer readable medium encoded with the method of claim 1.
4. (new) A computer readable medium encoded with the method of claim 2.